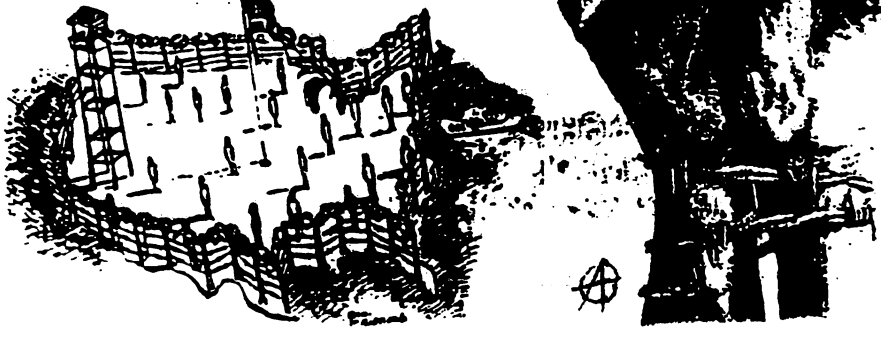
Are We Safe Yet?



The Evils Of Capitalism
John Phillips

In the United States as in most capitalist countries, the means of production are privately owned. This includes factories, machines natural resources, raw materials, which are owned by individuals/ capitalists. This important point, first pointed out by Marx shows how whether you own the means of production or not determines your position in society. If you belong to this elite class then you can live without working, but if you are like most people then you must work in order to live. One class does not work and lives off the blood, sweat and tears of the class who must work to survive. The elite class gets its income by employing others to work for it, while the rest get their incomes in the form of wages (wage slavery).

The fact that the labor provided by the masses is essential to production of goods, resources, as well as basic necessities to live as a society, you would think this valuable work would be generously rewarded. The truth is the opposite of common sense as this is not the case. Common sense as this is not the case. Common sense tells me that those who provide the best quality and most work should get good size incomes, but it is the ones who own the most who get the largest rewards and more money then they could spend in ten lifetimes. Sadly, the profits and corporate interests become more important then human beings. The fact that profits make the wheels go round in a capitalist society causes the smart business man to pay as little as possible for what he buys (including labor) and receive as much as possible for what he sells.

Result – for capitalists/owners, the property and money takes first place while humanity takes second.

This causes a serious problem for the rest of us because what is now happening is that big business is shipping abroad for cheap labor in sweatshops and such. They are now building factories in places like Mexico in order to pollute the environment unmolested by U.S. laws. They are involved in secret meetings and fixing prices with competitors to maximize profits and suck the consumers dry. Big oil recorded record profits while the rest of us paid $5 for a gallon of gas. This cause public transportation fares to rise dramatically. Archer Daniels Midland Co. was caught price fixing with Japanese and European competitors in 1996 which caused food prices to spike and hurt farmers across the country. These situations are common but next to impossible to prove or prosecute. Besides, these corporations throw money around in Washington for protection from Federal Authorities.

They usually pay as little as possible to workers, which drives the middle class and poor further into debt, separating the income gaps between the rich and everyone else tremendously. The middle class and poor are looking more like one class while the rich are getting richer. This has resulted in economic recession and debt going unpaid, causing the collapse of smaller banks that end up getting swallowed up by giants like J.P. Morgan. Or else the government intervenes and saves them, motivating more irresponsibility. They bailed out automakers and threw money at state and local governments in order to save a system that is doomed to failure. The quality of products being sold is terrible and designed to break down so consumer is forced to purchase the product repeatedly.

Since the owners and elite want to suck the consumers dry and sadly this is a large reason why people can't pay their debts or purchase things. What has now happened is that they've hurt their own interests because it's our buying and working that keeps the system running. Without our cooperation the system would fail and they would be forced to agree to our terms. Think about this situation for instance. I worked at a pizza shop years ago, and on average day I might make 200 pizzas in 8 hours. On a busy day though I might make triple that, 600 pizzas in the same amount of time. Now I was paid an hourly rate of $8 an hour and even though my output was triple on these busy days, my pay was always the same. So if the owner was selling a pizza for an average price of $10 that would mean that he made $6000 in that 8 hours, yet he paid me $64 for the night. Is this fair? Hell no! Now just imagine the difference between the income of a factory worker at an automaker as opposed to the CEO and owners. It would dwarf my example of the exploitation. All across the board it is prevalent in this capitalist society but people are so distracted and conditioned to this that it goes completely unnoticed. The masses are like sheep, docile and accepting of their place and positions as the flunkies of the capitalists. Capitalist production does not care about the needs of people. Its all about money. ADM Co used to have a saying, "Our competitors are our friends. The enemy is the consumers." Many of these giant corporations, with the help of their smaller 'competitors' set the prices that we pay and split up the market. This goes against the whole idea that competition will drive prices down in a capitalist society. Instead of being restrained by the law designed to protect the people they run roughshod over the people in pursuit of money.

Q: What Do you get when you cross an Idaho Potato with Lenin?

Someone may be saying this is bullshit, those corporations have shareholders and spread the wealth. The truth of the matter is that the number of shareholders is unimportant, its who owns how much of the business or corporation. The answer may shock you and best believe that the concentration of wealth and power in this country is immense. Why do you think that they refer to these elites as "the upper 1%." These other shareholders own usually a microscopic portion of the shares.

The distribution of wealth is one of the key problems that capitalists face since they want to pay as little as possible to their workers. This causes a problem since the workers are the consumers as well, and without much money they can't buy much product. This dilemma is the cause of most economic ills, it's an impossible balancing act. So what remedy is there?

WAR! And the preparation of war!

The result is full employment for people, money, materials, and machines of war. Exploitation of weaker countries in the search for new markets and steal their resources, set up puppet governments, open a McDonalds and widen the playing field for these capitalists. This is why this country is a capitalist, imperialist, and murderous pursuer of foreign interests. Kill for oil, natural gas, and search for surplus of capital and expansion. This is designed to combat recession and create more wealth for the upper 1%.

Still think it's bullshit? The truth is that it won't stop because capitalism must keep expanding to survive, and the capitalists that control economically also control politically. They contribute money to Democrat and Republican campaigns so that they can wield immense influence and it matters not who you vote for because they are all puppets to corporate entities.

"The masters of the United States are the combined capitalists and manufacturers of the United States." –Woodrow Wilson.

Still think it's bullshit? Still think the troops are fighting for freedom? If so then put this down and go jump in front of a truck because you are a lost cause my friend.

Here's more truths about capitalism. It is wasteful, and the wastefulness alone is enough to change one's opinion of this system. The chief reason it is wasteful is the fact that it doesn't always provide useful jobs to those in need of money and work. Yet at the same time these owners and elites do not work whatsoever and sit on more money than they know what to do with. This is fundamentally wasteful and wrong. The second reason it is wasteful is that due to it's concern for profits and increased prices instead of use for the hungry, it deliberately destroy crops and perishable foods. The third reason it is wasteful is war, the most destructive and wasteful result of capitalism by far. How can this be economic democracy when the powerful elites decide what is best for the country, then base this decision on their own best corporate interests, and decide whether or not the people's wishes are important enough to be met? This is not democracy but an economic dictator ship. The economic dictators insist that profits come first, before duty, and we suffer.

By the very nature of capitalism, the business world is based on self interests, double dealing, back stabbing, cutting throats, anything goes that can be gotten away with. Who cares that you'll never spend all that money? Pursue it in an obsessed, determined, insane attempt to add to your pile. No matter what it takes, the more you have the more successful you are. Screw the rest of them!

That this is a mentality people have is a sad truth.

"Necessitous men are not free men." – Theodore Roosevelt

The corporate owners do no managing or working, yet they reap the benefits of others work. They are the leeches of society in my opinion. People need to come together and stop the exploitation of the masses. If the truth finally gets to the sleeping people of this country, those greedy bastards will have a serious problem. This is why the propaganda is so intense here in America. There needs to be an awakening, where a new system can be implemented. One of mutual respect, mutual wealth sharing, equality of substance to all men and women. No more elites manipulating us into wars, no more lawyers, judges, and law enforcement henchmen who act as the elite's protectors in controlling the poor and middle class. Shut down the courts and put in place a system that focuses on treating the mentally ill and drug and alcohol addicted instead of warehousing them for profit. Begin the healing process of our damaged society. This can be a true and successful Anarchy and Mutualist economy. It is important to spread the truth through zines, the internet, and demonstrations, in an attempt to reach the youth as they are the future, as well as the adults who are still blinded. Fight the good fight!

Although we may hold some beliefs that are different, it is important that we stay united as the core principles are the same. Communication and growth is most important for anarchist issues.

The concept of revolution is a clear thought. We know we need it. By "we" I mean all radicals, anti-authoritarians, and oppressed people of all colors, sexes, around the globe. The problems tend to arise when the best way to go about revolution come to discussion. Immediately there is a dividing line which comes into play. This dividing line separates change into peaceful change, and militant change. Both have proven to "work" in their own ways over the centuries. With that said I need to address something. To support Anarchism we tend to look for inspiration to the Anarchist revolutions in Spain, Russia, France, and even the mobilization in Seattle. Now the problem I have is that we keep referring back to these as what we need to do now, but if it really was the right way to go about revolution then it would have sustained and there would be no reason for me to be writing now. And I know revolution is a continuous process and its ever-changing but I feel as though we have stopped changing. As I said the problem is that those cases of uprising and revolution didn't work, that doesn't mean to abandon them fully, but find the flaws and fix them. Out of all the revolutions over the centuries, they can all fall into a form, this is how we know it is a revolution. But with that same form, we use the same tactics and like a dog chasing its tail we run in circles. (we succeed, and catch the tail, we loose it and chase it again) as intelligent and socially aware as we are, are we really that stupid? Before we have a revolution I think we really need to think about what we want. Are we looking for a grand battle of oppressor and oppressed in our lifetime, by overthrowing the state and quickly setting up a new social system where 1/3 of the population isn't aware of what's even happening or don't fully agree with/understand the new way, due to old ideals were left to stay and slowly grow in peoples minds because the revolution was quickly forced using old tactics. And as all other revolutions they didn't bring about peace, only put a bandage on the problem where it is doomed to fail again? So like I said do you want a grand battle in the next 10 years to somehow justify your existence on this planet, or do you want to create a revolution that will need no change after it. If were going to dream, why not dream big. To me at least, I believe our view of revolution is what needs a real revolution. Now to further discuss peaceful change and militant change. We should look at both sides first and see what both have to offer. First lets look at peaceful change, this has proven to work in the past such as all the large gathering of people pushing for change on certain issues, it was done over environmental changes, women's rights, segregation, etc. now did peaceful change solve all the worlds problems? No. But it does work in certain situations and should always be tried first. Now lets look at militant change and armed resistance. This has proven to work if even only briefly at certain times, such as the Spanish civil war. Im not going to list all the scenarios of peaceful change and militant change because there are too many, both sides are well documented though and are easy to look up. But we need to keep in mind that this is the united states government, and social structure we are fighting so tactics that work else ware will not work here. I believe using solely peace or militancy wont work. The united states is so powerful with such a large military that it will resort to violence against peaceful uprising(if it is believed to make real change). We saw this in the 60's when the national guard shot 4 unarmed students at Kent state. Even if peaceful gatherings are not expected to change anything police are being used more and more everyday to scare others away from taking action by using bullying tactics, or threat of force when it isn't even justified.(like it ever is). Now you may be saying "well that's why we need militant change". I just want to run a few numbers by you quickly. These numbers were taken from a 2008 Wikipedia page. The number of active military persons is 1,473,900 and with the army reserves adding an additional 1,458,500 this brings the total to 2,932,400 plus the number of armed police in this country which is an additional 800,000 which adds up to 3,732,400 armed people who are currently siding with the US government. Not to mention all the "good ol boys" that they could quickly round up to help stop the " Anarchist Communist terrorists trying to destroy the American way" just look at how everyone jumped on the train to invade Afghanistan and Iraq, don't think they'll do the same at home if there stuff gets threatened? And I know that not all the military is at home, there scattered all over the world, but don't think for a second that they will bring all of them home to stop a real change. The biggest problem that we have is that most of the population is unaware that there is even a problem, at least a problem that cant be solved by the almighty Obama. Now when these unaware people see masked militants and what they are doing, (smashing windows, burning banks, destroying capitalism and military equipment) then they see the tv and hear that the liberators are really "terrorists" whose side do you think they will take? This can be seen with militant changes that have happed and continue to happen all over the world. We know that "one mans terrorist is another mans freedom fighter". Most don't see the freedom fighter though. An example was a militant attack on the us by a lone individual who hated how technology was destroying the environment. He was known commonly as the Unabomber. If you have read any of Ted's writings on technology you can see he does have thought behind his actions and he is not some bomb-sending nihilist. He was first fed up with the way the world was working so he moved to a very remote part of the country to live In peace with nature. this ended when he took a 2 day walk to his favorite spot from his home and discovered that they built a road right through it. That's when the targeted bombings started. The problem was the actions did nothing because nobody knew there was a problem to begin with. The government run media was able to turn his revolution into a sole act of mentally unstable terrorism. Much as would happen if we only chose armed resistance. A big problem with revolutionaries is that we know that a big change is needed, but we forget that not everybody knows what we know. Sudden change cannot happen. Well it can, Im sure 10,000 armed people could over through this county, but then what? Anybody can smash the state, but true revolution takes much more than that. Most people cannot grow food, or build houses, or know anything about real health care. This is due to most occupations we have now would be irrelevant In Anarchism, so what you have is a bunch of babies who cant change there own diper. Everything we are fighting comes down to power. Power itself isn't real, by which I mean everything is the same. The problem is over the centuries we have let lies interfere with that making certain people better than others, certain races better than others, certain sexes better others, certain nations better than others, and now power is a real thing. But power cannot be defeated by physical force as it was created with ideas (lies), the only way to defeat power is with ideas(truth). Anarchists/other anti-authoritarians don't recognize that power, we understand that those powers are only in effect because of people belief in that "power", we understand that they were not born having the power of the state, or dominate in some way, but they grew to believe they possessed it and trick others into believing. because they were tricked into it. Yes. they still have much physical power over people through their armies, cops, thugs etc. but this is still because ever their thugs acknowledge their "power". A very stupid but accurate way to describe this power scenario is using Santa Claus. For people who celebrate Christmas, Santa is the man who gives presents, which explains why they are under the tree I the morning. The power Santa has was given to him by children believing that he was real. Parents and older kids knew otherwise but as long as 1 child still believed in him, Santa kept his power. But once everyone in the family knew the truth, immediately that power was gone. So as long as we accept that these powers of the state are real, and moreover allow others to believe these lies, nothing will change. As long as oneperson believes in something they can manipulate other uneducated people to their views. Just look at the Westborough Baptist church. Various cults where one person can convince others to kill themselves. And I know that Santa doesn't tazer, shoot, bomb, torture, jail and kill the children, but I felt that it helps to draw an example of how people keep power. So back to "Where do we go from here"? Direct action is a must, sitting on our asses wont do a thing. For things to really change in this world, certain things need to be broken, I don't believe this includes offensive attacks on people. Physical items help to hold the belief in power as much as peoplesminds do. A persons mind always has the ability to change, but signs, statues, monuments, vehicles, factories, and certain buildings do not have the mental ability to change and should be destroyed if perpetuating this power idea. A little side note: the battles that occur with police at demonstrations, which often turn to the use of "non-lethal force" to stop the uprisings. This "non-lethal force", those instruments, are tools used to enforce this power of the state. Without these weapons the "power of the state" drops vastly, as they have less control over situations. The se weapons are what needs to be destroyed. As all other physical items they were created somewhere, I'll give you a hint, certain "non-lethal" devises are created here in the US down south and southwest. We can fight police all we want but as long as those weapons are being created we wont win. They can only produce cops as quickly as they can produce the tools that make them cops, I say if were doing direct action, take it to the point of production. Were never going to get all the water out of the boat unless we plug the hole first. I personally believe that all change we do needs to be peaceful, I consider this to be education on how we need to live without forms of government in place. As you know, you cant force beliefs on people. The process is slow but people can unlearn all the lies they have been told. When I said peaceful offence, I meant that our main attack should not be on the system, but it should be on ourselves. Every person who discovers the truth and becomes educated takes away a little of the "power". the more people who don't believe in the power of the state, the weaker it becomes. Its whole existence is based on our compliance and belief in it. But again direct action is a must. Educating people is just as important as tearing down the symbols of power that hold peoples minds captive. As for militant defense, we need to be aware that even if all were doing is educating people and spreading knowledge, we will try to be stopped. We do need to defend ourselves when these things happen, but only as they happen. A lot of people justify militant action by calling it defense for something that has already happened in the past. I personally don't buy that. You cant get attacked and a week latter go hit the person back and call it self defense, your time has passed to react, and now you are on the offence. As much as we may want it cant be take back to defense. Now if were are having demonstrations and gatherings or even being in our own living spaces. We should defend ourselves if attacked. We are fighting ideas, and when these things happen we are letting a little bit of "power" go back to the system in the physical form when we let ourselves get beaten. So I don't know about you but I want the cycle to end. I aim for a revolution that needs nothing after. I'm not seeking to temporally change a certain area, I'm taking many steps back and looking at everything that needs to be done. Not just things that affect me. It looks intimidating but I know that there is nothing we cant do, if we truly want it done. The ability to make that happen is the only power that needs to be.

government, law or order. Its other definition is : utter confusion.

As a self proclaimed Anarchist I can only agree with part of the definition. I cant agree with the without order or the utter confusion part. This is why, I believe that in an Anarchist society there would be a natural order and with that natural order there would be no confusion. I feel that society as a whole is composed of decent individuals that have a basic understanding of right and wrong and that they tend to do what's right more often than not.

As an Anarchist I feel that we don't need an oppressive government that imposes taxes on us and makes laws that are not needed. One of my favorite quotes is "good people don't need laws and bad people don't obey them", but I cant recall who said it. I feel that we don't need a brutal police force or judges and prosecutors to throw us in prisons and jails. We can have a functional Anarchist society, but it is a must that we start respecting our fellow man and treat them with the equality they deserve regardless of their race, religion, gender, or sexual preference. I like to believe that if there were no money the government and owners of the major corporations could not use money as a false symbol of wealth to set themselves above others and enslave the people of this country. They want us to slave for them so we can make them richer. They "pay" us for our services then turn around and force us to give them their money back so we can live. They sell us property that they do not own then make us pay taxes on after we buy it from them, and if we don't pay their taxes they will take it from us so they can sell it to some other poor person. I say that we should knock down that oppressive system so we can have true freedom. We don't need a "higher class" of people telling us what we can and cannot do. We should be able to live our lives the way we want to. Right now in Amerika thousands of people are going to jails and prisons everyday for not doing what the government wants them to, or for doing something they don't like. So I believe that we need an Anarchist society to be free because anyone can see that this is not freedom, but oppression.

I was reading a newspaper that if found in the dayroom today dated June, 18 2009 and discovered that the "powers that be" have found a new way to corrupt today's youth by instituting a new elective class in the already dysfunctional educational system. The article was about a school in Fort Mead, Maryland that is now offering high school students a homeland security program, and they say were not on our way towards a police state. Starting at the freshman level and continuing until graduation they are "teaching" subjects such as: Islamic jihandism, domestic militias, nuclear arms and cyber crime. After two years the students in the program are allowed to shoes a career plan in fields such as law, engineering, and public service. This plan to trick this countries youth into becoming murders for the state was designed back in 2006 and was implemented earlier this year. The curriculum was co-designed by the commander at Fort Meade military base and he was quoted in the paper as saying "with the resources ay my fingertips, I can fill your entire curriculum." He has done so by arranging for students in the program to watch mock emergency response drills for chemical weapons attacks and school shooting. He has also had speakers form the F.B.I. and the food and drug administration come to speak to students as well as setting up field trips to places like the marine base in Quantico, VA. The teachers of this program are suggesting to the youth that they could get jobs with "top secret security clearance" which I believe is quite appalling, but kids at that age would think its "cool". The article also stated that the parents and kids love it. I would like to know what is wrong with the people in this country. They have been brainwashed for generations by the government in the form of media, public schools, and the like. I'm not saying that every aspect of the public school system is corrupt, they do teach the children stuff like reading, writing, math, and science. But everything else is lies to get people to conform. I have always believed that one of a parents obligations to their children is to protect them from harm. I feel that this new program Is very harmful, because at its deepest roots it is 17 sending subliminal messages to today's youth promoting racism, religious intolerance, murder, and genocide. Wake up people we are on the fast track to becoming a police state. We need to stop shit like this from happening. We need to stand together in solidarity and smash the system. Lets shut this mother fucker down!

Mutual aid is providing what is useful in achieving an end by giving and receiving in equal amounts. I like to believe that this would be a logical option for an economical system in a functional Anarchist society. This is why! I feel that a economy in which mutual aid is utilized everybody would receive everything that is needed to survive. I also feel that this would significantly reduce crime rates as everyone would be provided with what is needed for them and their families to live comfortably. With less crime there would be a more peaceful environment for all which would help promote equality and tolerance. Here is an example: in Peru there is a primitive group of peoples called the Machigenga. They are a hunter/ gather tribe that was established thousands of years ago and have had very minimal outside influence. Work is divided amongst the tribal members according to skill levels, so it's the best person for the job. Goods are distributed in equal amounts to everyone so no one has more or less than anyone else. They have no modern form of government, but do have a chief that issues rules or laws. If the people do not like a certain rule or law then a community meeting is held in which anyone who is interested voices their opinions or ideas and the best course of action is decided by all. If anyone does not agree with the decision then they are free to go live with another branch of the tribe down the river or in the valley or wherever else they wish to go. In their community there is virtually no crime and very little violence. If a law or rule is broken then the "offender" is dealt with by the entire community which has set punishments for each particular crime. There are no unfair sentences as every "offender" receives the same punishment for the crime committed (in our corrupt society one person can receive a "light" jail or prison sentence for a crime and another person who commits the same crime can receive a "heavier" jail or prison sentence, which is unfair). I believe that they are a good example of an Anarchist society as they have no oppressive government or "higher class" of people or authority figures. They are not a warlike people, but do have hunter/warriors to protect themselves against unwanted outside influence or invasion from other peoples. They are not a technological people by choice. I feel that we would be able to institute a system like theirs without having to sacrifice any of our technological comforts. If we were only to stand up against the oppressive government and authority figures we have not. 19

A mandatory exportation date for Amerikkka tyrants! 20

Greeting comrades! On behalf of myself Multpile Migs and the Chicagoland Anarchist Collective. I want to focus this piece on the importance of Anarchist solidarity and commitment. It is extremely vital in its entity to eradicate our oppressors, free our minds and to obtain through absolutely any means necessary, or rightful untarnished freedom in Anarchy. I am I the exact same uphill struggle very dedicated Anarchist fights everyday. Every Anarchist warrior regardless of geographical location, whether on the streets, incarcerated, held captive in enemy's hands, on demonstrations I the black block frontlines battling the rotten blue menace, to the block medics, to the writers and distributors of the Anarchist Black Cross. None of us are unique in our struggle for freedom. We all need each other in solidarity for liberation from authoritarian tyrants. If you consider yourself or indeed are a completely independent Anarchist who stands and fights in the face of many like some of us have at times with no need for support, well my hat goes off to you. But wee need you and ultimately you will need the rest of us and the solidarity we carry to take back and reclaim what is rightfully ours by burning down the entire machine known as the state and the federal government to collectively build our new free Anarchy from the ashes. Its ours for taking and ours by right. Its been done before (Ukraine 1918-1921), Spain (1936-1939) and history does repeat itself, especially when brave Anarchist scholars and soldiers unite as warriors. Anarchist unification in absolute solidarity, well educated, and well trained all bring with us our unique skills and collective skill to our ranks. We will smash any state, crush the most massive of armies, tear down the most reinforced of prison walls, and strip the money and falsified legitimacy of the most powerful of world leaders. I don't know about everyone but sometimes I've had to swallow my pride and lean on the comrade next to me. With no exception solidarity accompanied sometimes with mutual aid given freely. I have bounced back stronger than ever each and every time. Be it in battle or at home. We also feed of each others energy, get braver and fight with more conviction. I see it everyday working with either captured anarchists held captive by the state or with comrades on the street. We strengthen each other and learn from each other. Now I know tactics, new outlooks, views, new power, for our victories over tyranny. We must reach out to one another, whether it be financial aid, medical attention, a roof, food, or a strong shoulder to lean on. The most important question is, how bad do you want freedom? Are you willing to study tactics, literature, history, science, weaponry, or just if or when its convenient? Will you keep your mind sharp as the razor wire they hold our comrades with? "an active mind is a dangerous mind" (Coyote, Nevada ABC prison chapter). Where does your commitment to Anarchism le? Who does your loyalty and solidarity lye with? Will you battle alongside and for the Anarchist next to you, pull him back into Anarchist ranks, from enemy hands? Will you equip yourself to mask up and carry a blinded comrade out of the burning poison clouds of the tear gas fields? Obviously not all of us Anarchists can be frontline warriors due to age or physical restrictions but to those of you, will you master your craft and bring it to the whole? Will you study and educate yourself and teach others? Each one teach one. Will you wire and distribute literature to both our comrades on the streets as well as those of us on the other side of the razor wire? Are you regardless of any restrictions willing to be an Anarchist medic? All of us can receive CERT training, free, (www.citizencorps.gov/cert/) or contact the Red Cross for first aid training free of charge. (www.redcross.org/services/hss/courses/) ? will you stand up, come forward, get trained and teach others? Will you pull or carry a fallen comrade out of danger or treat him right there on the battle field for their wounds? See we must work together to achieve our universal goal of freedom. We all need each other, in everyway. I ask you again, how bad do you want freedom? We must all make sacrifices. We can all offer something to move us closer to 22 freedom. With Anarchists solid in ranks, no army can stop us. We can and will reclaim what is rightfully all of ours. We've done it before and we must and will do it again, for you, me and our children! Our opportunity is here. If you are hesitant or still in fear of the states unrelenting violence, rest assured, for when a fascist tyrant closes a window, an Anarchist kicks in the front door! Now is the time to prepare and ask yourself one last time. How bad do you want freedom? Stand up, lets stand together, unite as one Anarchist fighting force. United we stand divided THEY FALL! "revolution is never begun anew. It only continues where others left off" pick up our black flag united comrades, were taking it to the head! Till the end of days, long live Anarchy!

Size 13 on our neck...resist the liars!!!
The other shoe has dropped. 23

Each and every day we are bombarded with images and messages that bigger, better, faster, more is what we all should seek. Commercials and movies, music videos that depict the newest, slickest cars on the shiniest rims, and souped up engines. Small computers that can be carried anywhere and pull internet connections out of thin air, while cell phones have cameras that you can use to record real time porno's on. (I know, I've see one myself) the message is constantly pounded into our psyche and the result is a country of greedy, self serving, excessive people. Overweight children stuffing their face at the checkout line with Twinkies while Begging their mothers to take them to McDonalds. Yet in a neighborhood not two miles from that same piglet of a kid is a hungry person who relies on a government check or survives on nothing at all. Drugs are in every single high school in this country, hard drugs, yet these specific drugs are not grown or manufactured in this country. I've seen an entire generation of people rotting in prisons, dead from overdoses, women selling themselves and looking like skeletons, and people turned into animals in pursuit of these drugs. So the question I ask is how can The government keep out terrorists and biological weapons that are easy concealable, keep out illegals? Yet drugs are on every fucking corner, in every fucking high school, in all the lugs and bars. Its all about money, the whole supposed war on drugs is a big sham. The money they piss on law enforcement, the money they piss on prisons, court systems, on programs. They all get in on the action and its on e big party at our children's expense.

How is it that in Afghanistan they are producing and exporting more heroin now that American troops are there than ever before? You tell me. I wont even say it. Look at the privatization of the military, its as if America has 10 branches instead of 4. even if Obama pulls out the troops in 2011, you better believe that Blackwater U.S.A will still be there along with some special 24 forces to over see the puppet government. Capitalism is all about expansion and making more capital, this country has globalized and has become an octopus with tentacles that have seemed to expand all over the globe. just as an example of how this country is controlled by corporate heads with corporate interests. Dick Cheney (Halliburton), Peter Aldridge (Aerospace Corp.), Army Sec. Thomas White(Enron), Navy Sec. Gordon England (General Dynamics), Air Force Sec. James Roche(Northrop Grumman). Now you may ask what's the big deal, but if someone has a business interest that may influence a decision like whether we invade a country (ie Halliburton/iraq) this is conflict of interest. The growing private military corporations such as Blackwater U.S.A., and Triple Canopy, and other war profiteers are now in the business of war. The fact that these people also hold powerful positions in office in Washington is a serious cause for concern.

Nowwe have 2.3 million people in prison in the united states and this is another example of privatizing that has gotten out of control. They are expanding and this is another benefactor of the drug joke, that is bull shit because people are living large off this system. Aramark and companies like this will get a contract and control the commissary and serve the meals, what ends up happening is they serve the smallest and nastiest meals to force the prison population to buy the maximum amount of commissary. The commissary is like buying quarter bags of chips for a dollar and candy bars for a dollar fifty, oodles and noodles for a dollar a piece. Plus the prisons get their money for each prisoner, not to mention the lawyers, judges, stenographers, clerks, CO's, its all so pathetic when a lot of these young guys are in here for non violent offences that were drug related (drugs the crooked gov. let in).

Some of you may be thinking, what is the point of this guys rant? Well, that this current system is a brutal machine and people are nothing but slaves to it. Even the people out with there daily grinds, who slave for their little belongings that only own them in the en, with heir debt. They run the rat race and are always distracting themselves for the pathetic existence they live. Very few are really alive, and thankfully there are even those few. This country is one big sound bite, one big reality show, a joke. The upper 1% most richest people in this country are the parasites, and they never worked a day in their life and never will. They sit back and collect on our sweat and blood, and we sit in this gutter and twitter or watch American idol. This is not a conspiracy theory, this is reality! Bush gave these people tax cuts! For gods sakes they are the richest people in the whole world and he cuts their taxes. They put their radio pundits on the radios and push the agendas a while calling the poor the parasites. They pick the presidents, they decide how much to allow the common person to obtain so as to keep us asleep and so they maintain their power and wealth.

The wars and plunder that we a re witnessing these greedy, power hungry men to orchestrate and mastermind is utterly appalling in its complexity and magnitude. The growing interest in the Caspian Sea Basin has been the prime motivator of the vilifying of Iran. The Caspian Sea sits in between Iran, Russia and a host of old satellite states that used to be part of the Soviet Union. The United States has shown an increasing interest In Azerbaijan. The reason is the fact that Dick Cheney's energy task force estimated oil reserves in Azerbiajans and Kazakhstan's sectors alone equaling 20 billion barrels. As of then Russia controlled most exporting of this oil. In September 2002 construction of a pipeline began, and in 2003 the Bush administration helped overthrow president Eduard Shevardnasdse of Georgia because he did business with Moscow and granted new drilling and pipeline concessions to 26 Russian firms. He also obstructed Washington's grand pipeline plan which was a mortal sin. All this while laying claim to Iraqi oil and masquerading it all as the liberation of Iraq.

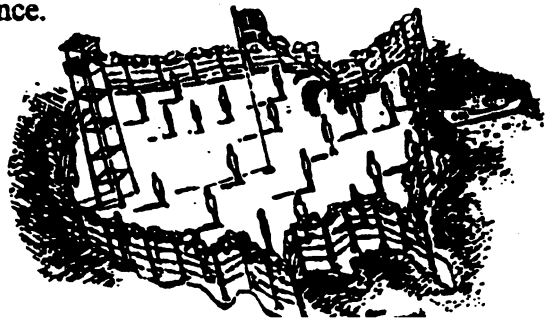
What set the groundwork for this imperialistic and gross power grab was September 11, 2001. when you look at this conquest for the worlds oil and natural recourses in context with the privatization of military contractors which gained incomprehensible ground economically during the years of 200 and on, what comes to mind is that the expansion that has taken place is incredible. As explained before the goal of capitalism is expansion and throughout history war has been a key tool for the expansion of capitalistic societies. The seeking out of new markets, capital, and goods is often the motivator, not to mention the boost to the economy at home.

Some people might say so what? Americans live comfortably. Are you serious? Americans are constantly being exploited and put in fear of all kinds of imaginary enemies in order to push an agenda. Americans are victim of government cover-ups and drugs flooding neighborhoods as our youth die and are imprisoned behind them. The government lies so much that is now not only tolerated but expected. Americans have been so indoctrinated and gullible that people still believe that 9-11 was a tragic terrorist attack only. Blind to the fact that this was the springboard for plans that were in place for a decade. They now "legally" have taken our rights to privacy but have more control over our live than ever due to the PATRIOT ACT. It is so glaringly obvious that we have no say so as to the path this country is on, yet people are in some kind of you tube trance.



So this brings us back to the question why do we see a pounding of advertisement and movies, videos, and messages that bigger, better, faster and more is what we all need? The reason is that we area nothing but workers and consumers and we naturally we area constantly told "buy this" "renew that" "upgrade all of it". Not to mention food, and the bullshit that is slowly killing us, but they don't care because the rich are sitting back getting fat in there mansions never doing a days work because the money makes itself. They suck the system and the people of the earth, and the resources of the earth, and they don't stop and will not ever until we rise up and stop them. How many times are we going to stand by and play spectator to these poor countries that are so rich in natural resources be exploited and blown all to hell, women and children as well as young men.

"the masters of the government of the United States are the combined capitalists and manufacturers of the United States."--- Woodrow Wilson

Stephen Kinzer, a New York Times correspondent stated in a dispatch about the private American citizens looking to make money of Azerbaijan oil. "...reads like a roster of the National Security establishment. Among the most prominent names are former Sec. Of state Henry Kissinger, James BakerIII, Dick Cheney(of course), former senator and Treasury Lloyd Bentsen, former white house chief of staff John H. Sununi, and two national security advisers Brent Scowcroft and Zbigniew Brzezinski." We the people is a joke and its time that people collectively realize that and stop living in denial.

In 2005 congress passed an appropriations bill and what was buried inside this bill is terrifying. Buried inside was an amendment authorizing a national ID card called "REAL ID" it takes form in state drivers license cards. The drivers photograph is converted into a biometric grid consistent with the details and features of your face, this forms a kind of "face print" unique only to you. Now in stadiums, shopping malls, airports, government buildings, and some city streets there are, or soon will be cameras that are able to read this face print and recognize you through software such as, but not limited to, FaceEXPLORER, and LI/VIISAGE. So if the government has an interest in you or wants you for whatever the reason these eyes in the sky are soon to be everywhere.

Wait a second!!! Did I just wake up in some Orwellian nightmare? Is anyone reading this for the love of whoever!!!???

So now we have On Star, and cell phones that can track us down like some kind of homing device but now we have to deal with cameras that can actually recognize us. I though that the fourth amendment of that joke constitution stated somewhere what we are to be secure in our persons. Look around you, the other shoe has dropped and folks, it's a size 13.

PITTSBURGH PENNSYLVANIA, APRIL 4, 2009 three Pittsburgh Police officers were gunned down answering a domestic call in the Stanton Heights section. The officers Eric G. Kelly, Stephen J. Mayle and Paul J. Sciullo were shot with an AK-47 in the young mans home. Of course there has been parades and memorials that interrupt regularly scheduled programming everyday since. I'm sorry for the families loss but lets face it, in this city alone the police have been taking the lives of unarmed individuals for years and years. Not one memorial service for those young men and recently a 12 year old boy in Uniontown PA named Michael Ellerby who was shot in the back by an Iraqi war

Q: How Do You Save a Nazi From Drowning?
A: Take Your Boot off his Head!

vet/ State Trooper. He also was unarmed and I was stomped by these thugs in uniform and watched them plant drugs on a friend of mine while they laughed in our face. Ive watched helplessly as a police chief lied on the stand under oath at a trial I was involved in. this man who had a gun battle with these for over four hours has my respect and you better believe that when they get done with him in this crooked city hell wish he would have died in the shootout instead of surrendering. His name is Richard Poplawski and I would like all who read this to have a moment of silence for good ole Rich and wish him the best with his upcoming courtroom battle. The media is crucifying him I the papers and Governor Rendell has already stated that he'd sign his death warrant in an instant. Yes the District Attorney Stephen A Zappala is seeking the death penalty. Funny how nin the States case two wrongs do make aright. Murder is wrong, even defending your home against state sponsored thugs. So the state will kill ya. PATHETIC.

Oh yeah, the officer who shot the 12 year old boy in the back in 2003 is still on active duty. Somehow his own who investigate wrong doing found nothing wrong with chasing down and murdering a 12 year old boy in cold blood, the message? Murder is okay when the police do it.

Why education is important for an Anarchist revolution
By Daniel Tillotson

I feel that education is important in helping bring about the Anarchist revolution and the changes that will come with it (social freedom, economic security, and equality to name a few.) there are many subjects about anarchy to be studied and applied to the struggle such as what Anarchy is, what Anarchists stand for, the different kinds of Anarchists, revolutionary tactics, how and what is needed to bring about the revolution, what to do once it is won, and possibilities for functional Anarchist society's and ways to make living in the Anarchist society good for everyone. I think that the first subject (what is Anarchy) is needed to help dispel the common myths and misconceptions about what anarchy is and to let the people know what Anarchy is not. The second subject (what Anarchists stand for) is necessary to teach the people what we believe in. the third subject (different kinds of Anarchists) is to let the people know the differences in Anarchist views so they can find what kind of Anarchist they are and which form is best suited to them. Those three subjects would be for the people that don't know about Anarchy. The other subjects are a bit more advanced but are necessary for when the masses are getting prepared for the revolution. These subjects would teach the people what is needed to be successful in accomplishing the goals of the revolution Anarchist Society's) and what a revolution is. Alexander Berkman said "most people have very confused notions about revolutions. To them it means just fighting, smashing things, and destroying." By learning about revolutions we will know that they are much more than violence. We will also learn how to set the ultimate goals and the best ways to reach them. The people also need know what to do and how to do it once the revolution is won. So Anarchist theory is very important to study. It gives the masses a basic idea of how Anarchist society's could function. After the people have been taught what Anarchy is and what is needed to bring it about, they will be ready for the next step which is the 3rd application of everything they learned while educating themselves I revolutionary tactics. Then we will be better equipped to succeed in the Anarchist revolution and bring about the goals that we are fighting for (freedom without oppression and a society in which everyone's needs are met). After the revolution has been fought and won we would be able to apply the ideas we have learned by studying Anarchist theory(and history) for the betterment of all mankind, but it all starts with education and that is why I feel that education is important to the Anarchist Revolution.

Pay to Stay Locked Down

John Phillips

I was flipping through the newspaper (propaganda rag) and saw a couple articles that need to be addressed. City and county jail are now charging prisoners "rent". This is disgusting and unbelievable bullshit! Now more than ever the Nazi Police force will be salivating to find reasons to lock people up, to fill every bed in the jails and generate revenue. Of course the propaganda rag says this is for taxpayer benefit. Can I puke now? This is one more wake up call that we live in a police state. Now cities and counties can obtain a fee for keeping prisoners, not only from taxpayers but also from the very people they incarcerate and exploit! The crooked judges will now also be giving increased sentences and higher bonds to prolong the poor soul's stay in the hell holes around the country to make more money.

Springfield, Ore. Is to charge $60 a night when their new lock up opens in October 2009. Nazi Police Chief Jerry Smith told the propaganda rag that "these people are the ones who cause the cost to operate a jail, so they ought to be the ones to pay it..." This Nazi idiot fails to mention the money that gets made off of locking up as many people as possible in these unsanitary, dangerous, and inhumane lockups. These poor souls are the fuel that runs a system that grinds people's lives into a fine dust! Just consider the jobs alone from this enterprise, the guards, fingerprint techs, night court judges, how about the overtime pay for Nazi Cop's appearances at court hearings and trials. Look at the slimy attorneys who benefit, the District Attorneys, the Commissary Corporations. The court costs and fines that the unlucky soul must pay. The Nazi pig chief failed to mention this all comes out taxpayer pockets through federal funding as well. It's all a sham to exploit the people while pretending to protect the people, and sick individuals line their pockets in the process. Capitalism's sick results from turning human beings into an economic commodity used to generate capital.

An Atlanta based Southern Center for Human Rights has opposed this "pay to stay" policy that has gained serious momentum across America.

Salt Lake County Metro Jail, Utah- $40 per day
The Box Elder County Jail, Brigham City, Utah- $10
Taney County, Missouri - $45
Richmond, Virginia - $1
Douglas County Jail, Oregon - $60
Klamath County Jail, Oregon- $60
Overland Park, Kansas - $35
And so many, many more.

If this goes unnoticed and doesn't open people's eyes, I'm not sure what will. What is it gonna take for citizens to rise up and demand change? How much longer are these undercover fascists going to be permitted to exploit the people unabated?

There are so many mentally ill people that end up in prisons and jails, as well as people in need of drug and alcohol treatment, people who were defending themselves, or their families. Let not forget the poor souls who some detective decides is guilty and "Builds" a case, instead of investigating and solving the case. This last situation happened to Jerry Lee Evans, who at 47 years old was cleared of aggravated sexual assault by DNA after 22 years in a Texas prison. He is the 21st wrongfully convicted Dallas County person to be cleared through DNA testing in Dallas County alone! How many innocent people are languishing in prisons all around the country who do not have DNA evidence in their case? What recourse do they have? What about the non-violent man or woman in economically repressed areas who must sell drugs to feed their families? They are the ones getting the most time in prison! Who is gonna judge these 34 legislators, judges, nazi police, and district attorneys? Who will judge these crooked politicians who have late night sessions to give themselves raise while the public sleeps? (This happened in Harrisburg, PA.) How long do we sit back and watch our young men and women die in the name of "freedom" while in reality they die for the whims of greedy politicians and corporate interest?

Alabama police officers were caught on tape on January 23, 2008 beating Anthony Warren after a chase. This man was lying motionless as these pigs kicked, punched, clubbed, and stomped him. They were fired, but NO CHARGES WERE FILED! Of course he was a black man as well. Of course Jefferson County D.A. Brandon Falls dismissed race as the cause. My! How far Alabama has come since the 1960's racism and brutality!

The motivation for my writing is to put truth out there for people to see for themselves. The facts in this are 100% truth and I know all that read this who are not completely blind and fooled will agree that things inside this country are turning more and more against the people as a whole. This country is becoming more and more like Nazi Germany yet people don't see it.

Resist and be free by Daniel Tillotson AKA Twist 6-17-09

A government is a agency through which a political unit exercises authority, and to govern is rule, control, and restrain.

Why do people ant to be governed by anyone other than themselves? By having a government we are giving away our freedom, we are conforming to a so called "higherclass" of people that think they know how we should live our lives and they force us to listen to their lies and obey their every command. The politicians want to get rich off controlling us. They want us to conform to their ways to make it easier to control us. Here is a thought, why not govern yourself. We don't need an oppressive government to tell us what to do or what they think is right and what is wrong. We already know what's right and wrong. We don't need a government to make rules and laws for us. We don't need a government that has evil people to enforce those rules and laws. We don't need a government to impose takes upon us for things they don't own and things we don't believe in. why do we need a government to lock us away imprisons and jails for not paying those taxes or doing what they tell us? People need to wake up and realize that we don't need an oppressive government, we don't need their laws and taxes, and we don't need to make them rich and give them more power over us. They have to much already. Brothers and sisters we need to stop conforming and start resisting. We need to learn the weaknesses of our enemy and use it against them. We need to educate our fellow man and help them resist too. We should knock down that "higher class" and we should start living our lives.

To conform is to be similar to or identical. It also means "to obey". Why would anyone want to conform to an oppressive government? Don't people say that they want freedom or want to be free? By conforming we are giving away our freedom. Would you rather be a slave to the government by doing everything the so called "higher class" tells you to do, or how about being commanded by people that think their better than you? Or do you want to live your life freely? Should we want to be told what to do and when to do it by those same people that think they know what's best for us. Everybody should already know what is best for themselves. If we don't want to be forced in to doing the things the government or other false authority figures tell us to do then we should not conform to the so called society that the Amerikan dictators want everyone to be apart of. We should resist the government and authority figures they have set above us and encourage others to do so too. We should educate people and teach them about the ills of living in a conformist society. If living in a conformist society is as good as they tell us it is, then everyone would be happy with their lives. We should also teach the people that we can live a truly free life by not conforming to the Amerikan form of society and we should unite and stop that kind of society from happening so we can become free.
